The video marquee at the Quechan Casino♠Resort came to life in the final weeks of January, advertising this Friday's Grand Opening Celebration. The gala event will feature local and state dignitaries, a VIP cocktail reception in the Pipa Events Center, and the Flying Elvi skydiving stunt show from "Honeymoon In Vegas". With the great build-up of anticipation over the past two years, thousands are expected to stream through on the first weekend of operation.

One era comes to an end, as another exciting chapter in the history of the Quechan people gets underway this weekend with the Grand Opening of the Quechan Casino♠Resort this Friday. The final hand was dealt and the last coins dropped at the Paradise California Casino at 11:59 PM on February 10, transferring the Tribe's California Gaming Compact to the new Casino on Algodones Road at midnight of the 11th.

Almost 330 Paradise employees will move over to the new Casino, to form a core of experienced personnel. They will join approximately 600 new employees from Yuma and the Imperial Valley in opening the doors to the first official night of gaming, Quechan Tribe Night on Thursday, February 12th, starting with a ceremonial blessing, songs and bird dancing under the valet parking entrance (the porte-cochère, in French).

Tribal members will have an entire evening to meet the management and staff of our giant new enterprise, sample the food and mingle on the gaming floor. The staff will be involved in their final night of training that night, under the watchful eyes of the owners of this remarkable edifice, the Quechan people. Everyone will be critiqued on their performance, as they make last minute adjustments to routines, tweaking every detail, from the placement of silverware, to the flourishes in dealing cards, preparing for the huge public reveal at the Grand Opening on February 13 at 10 AM.

With full media coverage, a ribbon cutting and special appearances, the all-day event is sure to bring out the crowds. Five actors will appear as Marilyn Monroe, Danny DeVito, Jack Nicholson, Bill Cosby and Liza Minelli, to mingle with the crowds both on Quechan Tribal Night and from the 10 AM opening until 10 PM on the 13th.

Later that day, the Flying Elvi, a 10 member skydiving team first featured in the hit movie "Honeymoon in Vegas" will make a free fall jump from 12,500 feet to the front entry of the Casino at 6 PM Arizona time. Then the party moves back inside for dinner and more games!

Soon after, 300 specially invited guests will join local dignitaries and representatives of the Quechan Tribe in the pre-function area outside the Pipa Events Center for a gala Cocktail Reception at 7 PM, to put a final cap on the evening's festivities. With a 3-day President's Day Holiday weekend to follow, overlapping Valentine's Day, the timing for this special event couldn't be better.

A Message On The Future Economic Outlook of Our People

As your President, it is important for me to report to you on the recent concerns and the many rumors that are circulating about the Quechan Tribe's financial situation.

I have previously mentioned in my President's Report to the People on the slow down in the United States economy as a whole.

Historically speaking, stock market crashes, the depression and recessions have not had a tremendous impact on Native Americans simply because our ancestors were able to live off the land and did not indulge in the material things of life. But as we have grown and prospered, we have come to rely on outside revenue sources, and as a result, the current economic down-turn has also impacted us as a Nation.

It is the responsibility of your elected body, The Tribal Council, to address this situation and to carefully consider all of the alternatives.

With the doors of our new Casino♠Resort opening soon there are high expectations that the revenue from this enterprise will carry us into the future. We are further encouraged with the earlier-than-anticipated opening date.

Our Casino Marketing staff is hard at work developing strategies to attract guests from our local area as well as from Imperial County, Calexico and Mexicali and beyond into San Diego and Phoenix metro areas, to come and enjoy our fine Casino♠Resort and then return as their get-away from the big city.

But with the Paradise Casinos currently bringing in less revenue as result of the economic slow-down, the Tribal Council must look at reducing expenses.

We have added programs and services to the community over the past several years and some of this was done through Tribal Supplemental Funding using casino dollars. Over the years, as these expenses have steadily increased, we were able to meet these extra demands during the good economic times we were enjoying.

Now we must look carefully at all of our Tribe's expenses to determine where reductions might take place; in some cases there are duplications of services, and we must carefully consider which of these services are actually helping us.

The Tribal Administrator has indicated that we could be looking at spending reductions in excess of 25% if the current economic climate continues. While we do not yet have an exact figure, we are working diligently to determine what will need to be done.

The Tribal Council is not looking to lay-off Tribal members; our main focus is on making reductions that will not hurt our membership or decrease services to our community.

There are several areas that can be reduced that will still allow programs to continue and needs to be met. Some of these areas include non-mandatory travel, supplies, advertising and promotions. It is important to continue the vital services while still reducing our expenses.

Our Tribal Elders have expressed concerns regarding budgetary reductions. Past and present Tribal Councils have been sensitive to the needs of our elders and we have the utmost respect for their presence amongst us.

While no final decisions have been made we will look carefully at continuing to provide the recreation and activities our Elders need to enjoy themselves.

Again, some reductions may have to be made, but they will be the least intrusive reductions as possible.

You have probably read a great deal of troubling information in the newspapers about the economy; that big companies are laying off employees and cutting back on health care plans and other benefits.

Some Native American tribes are doing the same, and some are even going so far as to fire their own tribal members to meet their financial obligations. The Tribal Council is not considering laying-off tribal members. The main focus of the Tribal Council is to not hurt our membership, but to make ends meet and go on with life until the economy gets better.

There are many operational areas that can be reduced without impacting our daily lives; simple things in budgeting, like better control over lights, heating and air conditioning. However there may need to be some more dramatic reductions but these will be discussed well in advance and proper notifications made.

Again, the priority of the Tribal Council is to continue to provide employment opportunities for those Tribal members who want to work, to continue to provide needed services to our community while protecting our Tribal membership.

During difficult times these commitments may be difficult to maintain. However, by standing together as a community we can succeed.

We are a strong people. Let's work together during these less than ideal economic times, so we can go on with our daily lives and be less impacted by the general economy.

The Quechan Tribal Council wants the membership to know we are preparing to schedule a community meeting, but we must first finish our budget process, so we can accurately report to the people.

Thank You!

CASINO ♠ RESORT

AN ENTERPRISE OF
THE QUECHAN INDIAN TRIBE

It's Been A Long A TIMELINE OF THE QUECHAN CASINO♠RESORT

Construction officially began on Thursday, June 14, 2007 with the Quechan Tribal Council, management of the existing Paradise Casinos and representatives of the Freidmutter Group and ROEL Construction breaking ground for the project. Originally scheduled to open in November of 2008, the Tribal Council asked for additional surveys to insure that no cultural artifacts in the area would be disturbed by the project. During that time, negotiations were completed with the Imperial Irrigation District to move a powerline that crossed the middle of the site, and the subsequent delay fed increasing tension over what some tribe members viewed as a sacred area.

Finally, the Quechan Tribal Council put the question to the entire voting membership of the tribe, holding a special referendum election on October 18th of that year. Voters approved moving forward with construction at the current location at Interstate 8 and Algodones Road by a margin of 6 to 4. By late November of 2007, site preparation began in earnest as trailers and heavy equipment moved in (below) and began to lay in the roads and drainage for the coming resort.

Tribal monitors were present every day of the project, keeping track of sensitive locations. Any time a possible artifact was discovered, the area was fenced off against intrusion. The heavy equipment in the view above is working where the south parking lot now sits, and the groundbreaking took place about where the trailers in the center can be seen.

Milestones Include:

Quechan tribal elders visit the site, and cap their first tour of the building with the first raising of the Quechan Tribe Flag on March 31st, 2008.

A workers' recognition lunch is held, filling the Events Center in September '08 while work gets underway on the lazy river (right) outside.

Media from Arizona, California and Mexico attend a press conference on September 25, 2008, detailing the need for hundreds of new employees, welcome news in a time of national economic difficulty. Even at that date, the architectural model the press sees gives a vague date of "Spring 2009" for the opening of the Quechan Casino♠Resort!

Time Coming: A Construction History

OVER THE PAST 19 MONTHS - FROM THE GROUNDBREAKING IN 2007 TO THE FINISHING TOUCHES!

By March 2008 the elevator towers were going up and the foundation was in for the Hotel wing. Things would move more rapidly once the concrete for the walls was being poured.

Framing of the Casino and Pipa Event Center shot into the sky in this view taken only 6 weeks later. ROEL began to overlap work shifts to keep things on-track during the summer.

By June, the porte-cochère at the center of both wings extends out over the valet entrance, and all five floors of the Hotel are in place, prior to the walls being erected.

A scant four months later, with 4 shifts starting 2 hours apart every evening, the entire building is enclosed, paving begun and the air conditioning is installed and working.

A 2-day job fair is held for Tribe members at the Quechan Community Center in November, 2008.

Hundreds of new slot machines, some unavailable anywhere else, begin to be installed on the gaming floor that same month.

And the Q's employment office is inundated with applicants on opening day, December 9, 2008.

Surrounding communities learn how close the new Casino is to opening with a print and broadcast advertising blitz that gets underway on January 4, 2009.

The adjacent water storage and treatment facility is completed and begins operation, completing its first shake-down run and receiving certification to operate by the end of January.

Food and beverage staff moves in to the central kitchen, and begins developing recipes and procedures prior to opening.

Training Begins on Day One - Updated Continually

The prospect of having a new Las Vegas style Casino♠Resort introduced into the mix of the Yuma economy means more than simply giving the public great new choices in recreational diversion and entertainment. It means the providers of those diversions must step up to the plate and deliver a much higher level of service for their patrons, in keeping with the expectations created upon entering such an opulent building.

So, whether a person visits the Quechan Casino♠Resort to enjoy a weekend getaway, sampling all the possibilities, staying overnight with a room service breakfast, using the exercise room and sampling the gaming tables before a trip down the lazy river and a romantic dinner at the Ironwood Steakhouse (before they dance the night away in the Sidewinder Lounge), or it's a simple "lunch date" meeting at the Ocotillo Café, every visitor must come to expect a consistently high level of service from every employee, in every capacity.

To meet, and even surpass, those expectations, the management of the new Quechan Casino♠Resort has spent every day for the past six weeks, interviewing, recruiting and training the staff that will serve as the public face of the new Resort. Since the Employment Center opened on December 9, 2009, over 4000 applications have been received for the 1000 plus positions needing to be filled.

While 327 of those new jobs will go to experienced employees transferring over from the tribe's Paradise Casinos, that still leaves over 650 new people needing an orientation to the tribe's history and culture, the corporate philosophy of the Resort, and detailed training in their own responsibilities within their specific department and position.

Transferring veteran employees were fully briefed on the new procedures and expectations over the last two days of January, at the tribe's Main Street Cinemas in historic downtown Yuma.

And while the Paradise Casinos have long experience in providing training for their employees, this new venue, with its Hotel and Events Center, plus the greater choices in food and gaming a 30,000 square foot Casino offers, means there is an exponential increase in the number of people needing to be trained. Also, since the new Resort is owned by the Quechan Tribe, tribal members were given the first opportunity to apply for both the jobs and the training needed to fill them.

With that in mind, Anna Hemmer, Training Manager for the Paradise Casinos, and Patricia Barton, a Human Resources Specialist at Paradise, presented a series of workshops for tribal members last fall. Over 100 Quechan responded to their invitation, and they received a course that included interview tips, going over communication skills, public appearance, and the importance of punctual attendance in meeting business obligations. Those tribal members were then able to apply their new skills at a Tribal Job Fair held at the Quechan Community Center, to meet with the new Casino♠Resort's recruiters on November 18th and 19th of last year.

In the meantime, the Paradise Casinos Human Resources and Training staff put together a Power Point program for new employees coming in from outside the tribe. The program, presented jointly by Anna Hemmer and Deborah Waitley, serves as the introduction to a half day orientation for new employees. Presented to about 60 employees every day, the Power Point provides training on the history of the tribe, customer service expectations, the new Resort's amenities, and their policies and procedures.

The Quechan history portion begins with the period of the first Spanish influx of the 1500's, to the founding of Fort Yuma under the administration of the U.S. Army, and continues with the coming of the railroad, when trade expanded and times began to change. It then details the hard years under the influence of the Interior Department, when the now vacant Fort Yuma was used as a boarding school, and Quechan children were gathered up and taught to speak only English.

It then covers the creation of the Fort Yuma Quechan reservation in 1884, and formation of a Tribal government with the grant of tribal sovereignty in 1936, before proceeding on to the modern era of self sufficiency through business enterprises and Casino revenues.

Further training is also given by Terry Roper, the Quechan Tribe's Safety Coordinator along with Frank White, Benefits and Safety Manager at the Resort, covering the need for safety along with an explanation of employee benefits. Each group is then given a tour of the Resort, where they get their first look at their actual working environment.

Each new employee is then introduced to their department head, to receive further job specific training in hotel operations, guest services, casino support or their particular part in the vast flow of food and beverages provided through the all venues within the Resort.

"Each department is already conducting specialty training," says Mrs. Hemmer, who is also a member of the Quechan Tribe herself. "Employees will be trained continuously until grand opening and throughout the year. The focus is on quality customer service."

So, as you enjoy your first visit to this startlingly modern edifice, take note of the service and individual attention you receive. You will probably return soon for more of the same!

Quechan Fish & Game Receives Shipment of Trout

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (USFWS) delivered a new batch of young Rainbow Trout to the Quechan Nation on January 26, restocking a popular fishing hole just east of the old power plant near the junction of the All American Canal and Picacho Road.

"They had been promising us this shipment since sometime before Christmas," said Gordon Osborne, head of the tribe's Fish and Game Department. "Since they were a little late, instead of bringing in their normal shipment of tiny fingerlings that need a few months to mature, the USFWS brought in over 4,000 9-inch trout, so they're ready for fishing right now."

Officer Osborne says year-round fishing permits for use on the reservation can be picked up for only $55.00 at Hub Liquor, the Quechan Tribe's Fish and Game Office on Indian Hill, or at the Laguna Dam RV Park or the Sleepy Hollow Trailer Park (just north of Algodones, Mexico).

There is also a 90-day combination Camping and Fishing Permit available that allows a person to both set up camp and fish on the reservation for $95.00. There is no size limit on trout caught on the reservation, though there is a limit of 10 per day, per angler.

The Quechan Casino♠Resort: A World Class Destination

The desert southwest has never seen anything like it: The new Quechan Casino♠Resort truly brings the Las Vegas experience right here to Yuma, with an unparalleled resort hotel, casino gaming and entertainment complex in one.

Whether you stop in for a quick lunch visit to the Food Court, for Starbucks™ and a sandwich (taking your meal out on the pool deck) or look forward to a stress-free, low cost buffet dinner at the Ocotillo Café, it's all under one roof, less than ten minutes from Yuma. And for an evening out, it's well worth the trip from the Imperial Valley, with the Ironwood Steakhouse and Sidewinders Lounge open every night, serving up great adult getaways.

And don't forget the Casino action! The gaming area holds nearly 1000 brand new slots, many of them linked progressives, with tremendous jackpots possible for some lucky winner!

If you'd rather try your hand at table games, mixing it up against live competition, there are 24 tables on the main floor offering Blackjack, 3 card poker

From the cuisine of the restaurants and food court, to the recreational possibilities for every member of the family, every detail at the new Resort has been carefully planned and reviewed prior to opening, in order to insure the ultimate in guest satisfaction.

Just off the main floor, the Poker Room holds 10 tables in a quiet atmosphere, offering Texas Hold 'em, Hi-Lo, Omaha and Five Card Stud.

Just inside the valet parking entry at the porte-cochère, the hotel lobby welcomes you with a Quechan Culture Center full of authentic, museum quality artifacts on display, a nearby gift shop, and the business center, where guests can access the internet to download the latest information for business meetings at the Pipa Events Center.

Those booking a room will find quiet relaxation in well-insulated, fully internet equipped rooms. The full sized baths have solid polished granite countertops, real marble flooring and wonderful, atmospheric lighting. Each room comes complete with high definition flat screen digital cable television, to help guests keep up with the latest in news and entertainment.

Guests of the Q Hotel will further be able to enjoy room service meals delivered through a special series of hallways and elevators, bringing meals directly to their rooms from the central kitchen in quick order, piping hot. With a fully equipped exercise room, adult jacuzzi, beach-entry family pool and the only lazy river tubing experience within 300 miles, there is something for everyone who comes to stay overnight.

And everywhere you look, you'll notice unsurpassed attention to detail. While you are waiting for an elevator to whisk you to your room, notice the hand-cut mosaic flooring in the elevator lobby, over 3/8ths of an inch thick, polished to a lustrous mirror-like finish.

There are similar mosaics inside the entry way from the lazy river at the Pipa Events Center, and in the main lobby common to the Hotel and Casino.

The last three weeks of construction saw a small army of artisans attending to such details. Every wall framing was checked upon installation, and small handling nicks and imperfections were carefully blended and color matched, for a faultless appearance. Carefully selected gels were cut to fit the fluorescent lighting in recessed coves, to give a warm glow of peach, gold or sunset tints over the Casino floor, creating a much more intimate feel.

Even the slot machines are mounted on cherry stained cabinets, connecting them to state-of-the-art underfloor data networks, which can be quickly reconfigured to allow dozens of possible layouts (in case more machines are moved in, or some need to be removed for Poker Tournaments on the main floor). Everything you see has been carefully planned to the last detail over the past two years, to insure the ultimate in guest satisfaction. So relax, enjoy, and realize that it was all done for you!

Denise Dugan Tecumseh, Gift Shop Manager at the Quechan Senior Center, shows off a few of the latest handmade items now on sale. She's holding an authentic Quechan ribbon shirt, suitable for dress occasions, and standing in front of a rack of winter fleece jackets and blankets. The new jackets range from about $20 to $30, depending on size and style.

NEW VENUE "UPS THE ANTE" IN AREA ENTERTAINMENT

Kenny Loggins, Jenni Rivera and The Beach Boys are among the acts already confirmed to appear soon at the Pipa Events Center of the Quechan Casino Resort through the end of March. Other nationally famous headliners coming to the Pipa at QCR include Dwight Yoakam and Credence Clearwater Revived in April of this year!

Area residents will be able to save gas, time and the aggravation of big city traffic, as entertainment previously available only by heading to Phoenix or the coast comes to Yuma with the inauguration of the Pipa Events Center. The 20,000 square foot Pipa Events Center can be set up for everything from car shows to boxing to concerts, and further subdivided into six separate rooms to host trade shows and conventions.

The spring concert season headliners begin with an appearance by 2-time Grammy winner Kenny Loggins, on Friday, February 27th.

Kenny possesses one of the most welcoming voices in popular music, which can be identified as soon as a song starts. His film soundtrack hits such as "Footloose" and "Danger Zone" are immediately recognizable, and he has over 3 decades of top hits, with a career stretching from the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band to his 1991 album Leap Of Faith. One cut from that album, "Conviction Of The Heart," was hailed as a masterpiece when Loggins performed it live with a 25-voice choir and 6-piece percussion ensemble at the 1993 Earth Day concert at the Hollywood Bowl.

Along the way, he also joined Jim Messina to become one of pop music's classic duos and an era-defining act from 1972 to '76. Throughout the 1980s and '90s, Kenny Loggins also reigned as one of the most successful movie theme composers of his era, with massive hits including "I'm Alright" (Caddyshack), "Danger Zone" (Top Gun), "Nobody's Fool" (Caddyshack II) and the Oscar-nominated "Footloose" (from Footloose) and "For The First Time" the Billboard charts. Tickets should be on sale for her show at the Quechan Casino Resort, through Ticketmaster and on line at the Quechan Casino Resort website, playqcr.com by this weekend.

Then LIVE on March 25th: The Beach Boys!

Profoundly changing the musical landscape, The Beach Boys have a torrent of hits and continue selling albums by the tens of millions. Their unfading youth helps them continue to perform their music with the same bold and imaginative style from their early years in the 60's. With hits like "Fun, Fun, Fun", "I Get Around", and many, many more, The Beach Boys are long established among rock's elite!

But that's not all! Country superstar Dwight Yoakam will be playing the Pipa Events Center on Saturday, April 11th, and Credence Clearwater Revived will fill the room on Monday night, April 27th.

All concerts will take place indoors at the state-of-the art Pipa Events Center, with live images on "jumbotron" TV screens and the best in adult refreshments just outside in the pre-show lobby area. Once you've been to a concert at the Pipa Events Center, you may never want to drive all day to see a show again!

The world famous Flying Elvi skydiving stunt team promise to "drop in" on Opening Day, too!

(One Fine Day).

Tickets for Kenny Loggins went on sale January 31st at 10 AM, so you may still be able to get a seat if you act quickly!

The following Friday night at 8 p.m., Latin Pop Diva Jenni Rivera will be at the Pipa, taking Tejano, Mariachi, and Norteño music to another level! With her sex appeal and determination to smash female stereotypes, Jenni's music sits at the top of
